

EnviroServ Group responds to criminal charge allegations

Despite recent reports to the contrary, the current criminal charges that have been laid are against EnviroServ as a company. To date, the company has not received any further charges.

These charges relate to the odour problems experienced at the Shongweni Landfill since April last year. "We are currently engaged in an extended six month plan, tabled with the Department of Environmental Affairs and the community, which we are confident will mitigate the issue," said EnviroServ Group CEO Dean Thompson.

"We have and will continue to engage with our legal counsel prior the case being heard on 11 April. We continue to operate a legally-compliant site and believe that our track record of being a leading responsible waste management company will be upheld."
